Description

This next match is a doozy, buddy! Apparently some magnataur from the Dragonblight wants a piece of the action. You ever fought one of those before? All I can tell you is to aim high!

This is the Ring of Blood of Northrend apparently. (Check This post @ mmochampion for screenshots.)

According to the quick research I did, these are the order of the quests, from first to last:

The Amphitheater of Anguish: Yggdras!
The Amphitheater of Anguish: Magnataur!
The Amphitheater of Anguish: From Beyond!
The Amphitheater of Anguish: Tuskarrmageddon!
The Amphitheater of Anguish: Korrak the Bloodrager!
The Champion of Anguish

He has a buff on him that does ~2.5k per tick to nearby enemies, every 2 secs. This is spell reflecatble and it does not break spell reflect. Can help do some extra damage and keep aggro if youre a warrior.

Solo'd this on a 80 BM hunter after some experimentation (read: failures).

Use a tenacity pet, naturally. Keep cower off. Keep mend pet up 100% of the time. Stack stamina on your gear and make sure your pet has all the +stam talents it can get. Stay in Aspect of the Viper 100% of the time. Reserve misdirection for whenever your pet gets knocked back and you get aggro. Feign death is good as a last resort, but his AoE can kill you quickly. Have a good health pot ready just in case.

I doubt that this can be soloed as a pre-80 Hunter (I don't see 80 being much easier unless your gear is absolutely amazing). At least not without some serious luck.

While the first fight in this chain isn't too bad, even at 78 with maximized pet mitigation and healing (Spirit Bond, Glyph of Mending, Blood of the Rhino, Silverback, etc. etc. etc.) there's no possible way to keep up with the damage this guy deals. His buff can't be dispelled and isn't considered an AoE. While it might be considered nature damage, even 3/3 Great Resistance and Aspect of the Wild isn't nearly enough mitigation. You might be able to kite him... but the arena is pretty small for that (and you are completely screwed if you have even a few frames of lag).

If you have a pocket healer, though, I can see this being fairly trivial assuming they pay attention to their threat.

> I'd guess that you probably could solo this as a L80 BM hunter. Two more levels, next rank of Mend Pet, better gear, etc. Anyway, I just did it as a L80 feral druid in Naxx-level gear using only Improved Leader of the Pack and Frenzied Regen for healing, was pretty easy.

> Attempted as lvl 80 BM and Survival hunter - the hit that's being done on pet (Tank-specced Turtle) were just too much to heal through. I deliberately played with the aggro to give the pet chance to heal up, but still couldn't get Magnataur down below about 30% health. Good (Partial T7, all purple >= iLvl 200) kit.

> I soloed him with a 80 MM hunter. I put my pet as far as I could, then burst him with misdirection on, then my pet tanked him during 4 sec with the mending and cowering on, then I used distracting shot, then feign death, then my pet died but I used Heart of the phoenix and deterrence and then Kill Shot :D not that hard Almost impossible for a level 80 warlock to solo as affliction. I didn't have improved voidwalker, as a result fo this, the voidwalker sucked at holding aggro, spamming health funnel just kept me barely below the aggro threshold, but if I tried to do any dps (meaning to get health back from using health funnel), I would almost automatically pull dps. Also, whenever my voidwalker was knocked back, the amount of aggro generated from health funnel during the knockback would also pull aggro.

It is possible to solo this as enhancement Shaman at 80 (no amazing gear), but not easy. You'll need your full arsenal of Fire Elemental, spirit wolves and bloodlust (SR helps as well of course). As stated before, nature resistance isn't really worth it, so just go Windfury and zerg him down with your pets, they will most likely output enough healing for you. Only use a MW5 heal if really necessary (wasn't for me) and you should be able to get him down within your feral spirit timer.

T9 geared feral druid picking up this for the achievement. This was easily soloed in cat form, although I got down to about 20% health. No tricks just a standard rotation (with mangle of course, can't get behind him to shred). I did pick up the buffs from the statues, which are nearby, and laid on some HoTs before engaging him.

Seems to me if you want the achievement for a little pre-Cataclysm lore completion, an ICC geared character should be able to get at least this far through the chain, which put me at 100 quests :)

Soloed as a lvl 80 blood DK.
HC gear doing 2500 DPS.
I started the fight by putting a Mark of Blood on him en fought him till it weared of.
After the Mark of blood is gone, summon your Army of the Dead. In my case they where around for the entire fight and died 5-10 secs afterward.

Easy as pie.

Can be done for the achievement by an 80 bear tank with all blues. Had to use most cooldowns and one pot, but ended the fight with a few thousond health. Ensure you throw up some HoT before the fight and I used Frenzied Regen. early on to keep my health up near 80%.

As a level 75 Warlock (standard FG/SL build) I have not been able to solo this (compared to other equal level elites I've handled) The magnatur seems to do something with the aggro off my FG or VW -- at times it just decreases with 10k in an instant. As healing the pet with Healthfunnel and just 1-2 DOTs make my aggro trail pretty close, that's a death sentence (you can get out once via Soulshatter, but then you have a problem).

-2 — By 77413 (375 – 2) on 2009/12/01 (Patch 3.2.2) solo'd as an 80 ret pally with quest gear.

-3 — By flinglam (127 – 0) on 2009/01/07 (Patch 3.0.3)

second quest and soloed as 75 Death Knight blood specced tank in quest/blacksmith gear.

-3 — By Jinton (3,535 – 3 24) on 2009/02/09 (Patch 3.0.8)

Soloed as a 80 pala mostly in quest and blacksmithing blues. I didn't even have to bubble, 5k health left after the fihgt. Used the medallion of heroism to heal myself twice.
